The luncheon is part of the Clarence Kelley Week of Law Enforcement, beginning October 13, where citizens thank law enforcement for the work they do. It seems society sometimes focuses on negative aspects of law enforcement, forgetting that officers are here to protect us and in many cases risk their lives to do so. The Crime Commission wants citizens to show appreciation to local law enforcement and this luncheon is a way of coming together to show that support. Join us in supporting those individuals who keep our cities and loved ones safe.

The Crime Commission honors four award recipients. The Greater Kansas City Chapter of A.S.I.S. International presents the Clarence M. Kelley Award, to a leading law enforcement administrator for outstanding work in making their law enforcement agency more productive. This award is highly regarded by law enforcement officials and the fact that the winner is not known until announced at the luncheon, has added to the value.

The Crime Commission desires to recognize and honor one individual or business each year by presenting the Ike Davis Award. Ike Davis was a civic leader of extraordinary foresight. The Alvin Brooks Award is presented to an outstanding community leader. The Officer of the Year Award is presented to an outstanding officer.

Traditionally this luncheon sells out early. For more information contact Amy Macey at the Crime Commission, 816-960-6800 or amacey@kc-crime.org.
